

Man's Guide to Buying a Wedding Ring

You can get the perfect wedding ring for your partner, with simple pointers in mind while the hunt is on. By Mansi Agarwal Men are no shopping experts. This is an already established fact. You must have many a time trailed behind your girl while she moves in and out of every showroom in a mall but would have just nodded your head when asked for an advice before the buy. Now the big day is near and it is time to buy a wedding ring for your partner, the dilemma you are about to undergo is inexplicable. Ok, so you may be just amongst the luckier ones if your soulmate has already shoved a glossy catalogue of wedding rings in your hands, the job is nearly done. For the rest the dilemma continues to grow.

Men, not being a master in the subject of jewelry and gems like most women, can end up clueless just thinking about spending a good deal of money on a thing they know nothing about. It is a tough job, agreed! However, you can get the perfect wedding ring for your partner, with simple pointers in mind while the hunt is on.

- For a girl, a wedding ring matters a lot. Though you might have tried to keep it a secret, the chances are that she knows that you are on the lookout for a wedding ring. Keep your ears open for subtle hints that she may have dropped now and then about her preferences.
- If you haven't already done so, take note of the jewelry she presently wears. Is it gold or silver, simply crafted or designer made? This wonderful info alone can assist discover her taste.
- Know the ring size well in advance. You do not want to end up buying a ring that's either too loose or way too tight. Also, ask the jeweler if the ring you are purchasing can be sized! There are some wedding rings with elaborate detailing which are usually made-to-order.
- Decide upon a budget before stepping into the jewelry shop. That would save a lot of your time and efforts.
- Get a friend, don't go to the jewelry store on your own. If possible, request your partner's best pal or mother to assist you select the ring. If you are concerned that they might spill the beans, bring a reliable pal along. Just make sure that they have a good taste. You can even ask your sister or mother for some advice.
- Strictly stay away from any purportedly "great jewelry buys". Make sure you buy the ring from a reputed as well as a certified jeweler. A bargain priced stone from a vendor will most surely be of an inferior quality. A certified jeweler will provide you with a certificate stating the gems authenticity.
- Last option is to bring your sweetheart along. Yes, you might lose the pleasant surprise element but atleast you will end up buying a ring that she adores.

These tips will come handy when you are buying a ring for your sweetheart. A wedding ring is a gift for life and a symbol of your love for her. Go on and strengthen your bond with the perfect ring.